

Call for Articles 2020

Nawa Journal of Language and Communication

Special Issue: This volume will be devoted to Health Communication. We welcome articles which address the COVID-19 pandemic.

NAWA Journal of Language and Communication is published bi-annually by the Faculty of Human Sciences at Namibia University of Science and Technology. It is a peer-reviewed (double-blind) journal whose goal is to advance knowledge in human language, communication and literature. The journal publishes academic articles dealing with practical research findings, pedagogical methodologies, critical analyses and theoretical perspectives in language, literature and communication and related disciplines such as linguistics and information and communication technologies. NAWA journal encourages research without boundaries in languages, literature and communication and related areas.

Prospective authors should submit their full papers by email to the Guest Editors:

- Dr Nkosinotando Mpofu, Namibia University of Science and Technology (nmpofu@nust.na), and
- Prof Rewai Makamani, Namibia University of Science and Technology (rmakamani@nust.na).
