Nov 2019 & Jan 2020 Exam Scope

Revise Following Topics for the two Exams
Topics to Revise for Nov 2019 & Jan 2020

- Read extensively on what we have done during the semester and more so in Cockcraft & Cockcraft (2014). Ensure you know what Rhetoric is and how the various philosophers, rhetoricians and others we reviewed define it. In particular, review the following:
  - Lesson 2 on the Functions of Rhetoric also found in Study Guide and how one can use them in various areas.
  - Lesson 3, Study Guide and Cockcraft & Cockcraft (2014) on ancient philosophers in particular: Aristotle, St Augustine, Plato, Desiderius Erasmus Roterodamus, Marcus Fabius Quintilianus and Marcus Tullius Cicero, what they are remembered for, what they said about rhetoric and key ‘terms’ on rhetoric that are associated with them. It is important you are able to give local examples on their rhetoric.
  - Read Lesson 4 and Study Guide on modern philosophers Burke & Perelman and what they are known for and how to use it variably.
  - Read Lesson 6 on six (6) key elements of critiquing a speech and practice critiquing speeches. The six key elements are under Lesson 6 but as on this link: http://sixminutes.dlugan.com/speech-evaluation-1-how-to-study-critique-speech/.
  - These key elements are: Evaluating the speech’s objectives, Audience and context of the speech, Evaluating the speech’s opening, Evaluating the speech’s clarity, Evaluating the speech’s body and Evaluating the closing.
  - Read extensively on Ethos, Pathos, Logos (Lesson 7, 8, 9 as well as in Study Guide and especially in Cockcraft & Cockcraft (2014). How do you identify them in a speech? What makes your quote in the speech fall under any of these three proofs? Remember the exercises we did in class on the proofs both in your individual speeches and in groups.

- All the best to those who start revising now for their exams so they are better equipped to perform well.
